THE REORGANIZATION OF THE ARMY.

The subject of the Army Organization, and especially an extended investigation in the expenditures in the army, with a view to bringing about a report at some future time upon the reduction and reorganization of the staff departments, Gens. Hancock, Sheridan and Schofield have been summoned from Gen. Hancock thought the enlisted corps ought rather profitably be merged into the artillery corps, as was formerly the fact. The corps which had the guns and projectiles ought to be allowed full control over them. Gen. Hancock thought the Corps of Engineers ought to be merged with the Corps of Engineers, as the latter have had experience in dealing with the lakes that the Corps Survey perform on the subject. Gen. McDowell, who was examined today, gave the Committee a great deal of interesting information as to the organization of our army compared with that of European armies, and gave it as his opinion that several of his staff department could profitably be consolidated. The Committee will probably not be able to make any report at this session.

THE TOWER ON DECK.

An effort will be made to include in the amendments to the Tariff bill a large reduction of the duty now imposed on most kinds of drugs and medicines in daily and common use by the American people, articles which do not come in competition with any of our domestic products, inasmuch as they are not the growth or production of our own country. In some instances this duty amounts to more than 100 per cent.

APPOINTMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT.

Out of nearly three hundred civil appointments made by the President in the present policy, but three, and those of an unimportant character, have been confirmed. The action of the Republican Senators yesterday has thrown all the candidates here, and their friends, into a fever, and a vigorous effort will be made to induce the reversion of the rule so far as to admit of confirmations which can be shown to be unobjectionable to the incoming Administration. Gen. Rawlins, who was very wealthy of Senator yesterday, was wholly of their own motion, and that Senator any feeling or any one else has held and expressed from Gen. Grant on the subject. Senators themselves fully believe that the important offices not present, which are to be part of the civil service of the new Administration, should be filled by that Administration. The political of the Republican members of the House asking this no more confirmations be made, and which was withdrawn in the Senate another yesterday, is in the following words:

To the Honorable the Senators of the United States:

In view of the fact that less than two months remain of Andrew Johnson's term, the undersigned Republican members of Congress from the Southern States, respectfully request that no more nominations be made, and that, except where necessary to fill vacancies, no nominations shall be confirmed until Gen. Grant's term commences.

Signed by over one hundred members.

THE EXAMINATION REVENUE.

Judge Olin of the District Supreme Court has prepared a decision in the matter of the claimants of the $30,000 seized office by the City of Washington for the payment of the internal revenue tax, in which he holds that the claimants, having been at the time in the civil and military service of the United States, are not entitled to any portion of the reward. By this decision the impecunious City of Washington is enabled from paying the sum.

THE HOUSE CODE OF BUSINESS.

The contest in the House, to-day, over the order of business, indicates the anxiety that Republicans usually prevalent at this point in the short session. Mr. WASHBURN announced that but thirty-one working days remained, and that there was yet, six of the principal appropriation bills to be acted on which the Committee had ready to report. The Speaker then stated the condition of the business of the House, the point of which was that if the House made any more special orders it would shut out absolutely imperative business. Mr. SCHENCK then made a speech on Mr. LAWRENCE's Special Payment bill, and adjourned in evening session was ordered for further debate on the same subject. The Pensions Committee then took the morning hour, after which the constitutional suffrage amendment came on, and after a speech by Mr. BLAIR in reply to Mr. BOUTWELL, an order was made for an evening session to-morrow night for debate on the subject. Mr. WASHBURN then got the House into Committee of the Whole on the Legislative, Judicial and Executive Appropriation Bill, which was considered until 5 o'clock without much progress. A very acrimonious contest occurred over the pay of the Clerk to the Committee on Public Lands, which Mr. WASHBURN had reduced. The Chairman of the Committee opposed it, and after more than an hour on the subject, the House defeated Mr. WASHBURN by two majority. The pay of other clerks occupied the remainder of the day.

THE PURCHASE OF ST. THOMAS.

Gen. RAWLINS will make a statement to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to-morrow, in reference to the purchase of St. Thomas, and the views of the Danish Government on that subject. The Danish authorities hold that the United States are bound, according to all the laws of international obligations, to carry out the stipulations of Mr. SEWARD and the Executive, and the object of the present inquiry by the Committee is to ascertain the precise points on which the Government of Denmark base these opinions.

THE ARMY APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. BLAIR will report to the House to-morrow the Army Appropriation bill, asking about $41,000,000 for the army for the next fiscal year. This estimate is about $8,000,000 larger than that of last year, which was $33,000,000. The increase has been caused by the Indian wars and the cost of transportation to the Indian country. The sum now asked is about $8,000,000 less than the amount required by the War Department.

PUBLIC BUILDING BILL.

The Senate Post-Office Committee, at its meeting to-day, had under consideration the bill passed last session, authorizing the Postmaster-General to give the Company a postal service on land. Gen. HAZEN was before the Committee by telegraph to the commissioner of another line of steamships to Europe, in which he is interested, for which Congressional aid is also the measure. The Committee did not have the matter before them, and postponed Gen. HAZEN's request for a hearing on the subject. The Committee on Post-Office and Post-Roads, consisting of Messrs. Ferry, Conkling, Ramsey, Patterson, Cragin, Pomeroy, Stewart, Corbett, Cole, Cragin, Pomeroy, Stewart, Corbett, Cole, Cragin, Pomeroy, Stewart, Corbett, Cole plied that he knew nothing of the matter. True, he had received quite voluminous dispatches from Commander KINGSLAND, but they had been lying unopened on his table. He would, however, on going on board the Guerriere, look into the affair!

On the following morning Gen. WEBB received a private note from Admiral DAVIS, expressing a wish that he, the Minister, would obtain permission for the Wasp to pass the blockading lines of the allies! The General responded at once to the flagship, returned the private note and asked the Admiral to write him an official note complaining of the outrage—for such he tried to convince the Admiral it was—and especially to avoid saying anything about permission to relieve our Minister from his critical and dangerous position.

The Admiral was at length roused to the gravity of the case, and agreed to have his official note [illegible]

THE PANAMA RAILROAD.

Edward R. Dayton vs. The Stockwell Insurance Company.—In this case the session of the Court yesterday was exhausted in giving testimony on the part of defendants, some which was that of two firms from whom plaintiff bought goods, and who, when the sign, at the plaintiff's request, furnished him with a statement in excess of the purchases made. Given items, and which statements were to be used as vouchers in substantiating his claim against the Insurance Company. Testimony, however, was given in contradiction, by one witness, to show that such statements had given him on the representation that he had purchased bills for cash which had not been paid for, and that he was induced by this to give an increase to cover the allowance of bills. A greater amount, and showing the date of others to be made, he never became to pay over that on facility on the bills, which he had purchased on the strength of the statements made to the same; inadmissible as the plaintiff's.

The case was adjourned over until Friday, when testimony will be heard in rebuttal.

Mr. Cook for plaintiff; Mr. Dwight for defendant.

A CITY BANKER'S ACCIDENT.

John Burns vs. The Second-avenue Railroad Company.—On the 19th of October, 1867, the plaintiff, who was in the employment of the Manhattan Gas Company, was engaged [illegible] on a gas pipe in Second-avenue, near Thirty-fourth-street. The excavation began at the Fourth-street and extended under the westerly track, compelling the downward men to shoring the horses and cars a distance while the work was going on. The excavation was [illegible] when the men were ordered to leave the place, on the approaching of the horses. Just before the second car passed the plaintiff was injured by the collision of two cars, one from the Fourth-avenue line, and the other from the Second-avenue line, which had [illegible] the excavation. The plaintiff claims that the cars approached the hollow were unlighted and passed behind the others, side. While the men moved on, the boring between the tracks, and moved the sidewalk or the horses, fearing that if he remained where he was he would be crushed to death by the cars, he attempted to cross the track to get out of the way, but in the hurry and fear he fell, and was knocked down by the horses and run over by the car, breaking a leg and an arm, with which he was seriously maimed for life, and permanently disabled for life.

The plaintiff was at the same place, where the collision occurred; that when the car was within about fifty feet of the excavation he met one of the men and a signal to stop the car; he saw the driver stop the horses, and take hold of the brake; the conductor then came to the front, and the driver left his seat to help, and the men ordered the horses to be taken off the track; the plaintiff, and the men present, were hurt. Cross-examined testified also that the car was not moving at more than moderate speed; the men were [illegible] at the time.

This closed the testimony on behalf of the plaintiff, and on these facts counsel for defendant moved for a non-suit on the ground that, from evidence given in his own testimony in chief, and by cross-examination, the plaintiff was almost at fault, and where fault is shown against plaintiff in an action of this character, he has no much out-weighed the case, and the defendants are entitled to go on the defence. The Judge commented that justice to all parties required that the whole evidence should be put in, and now, if the case should be disposed, he could never be a non-suit. The defendants then placed on the stand the conductor of the car, the substance of whose testimony was that at the time of the accident he was on the front platform, though he was not close down to the place of the accident; that when the men would fall in his way at this point, he would stop the car immediately after the plaintiff was struck. The plaintiff claims $20,000 damages, and the case is still on.

MOTION TO STRIKE OUT.

Harvey Parsel vs. Alexander Hopkins.—This was an action on a promissory note for $271 18, made by McDougall & Co., in favor of E. S. Smith & Co., and indorsed by Mr. Hopkins. The plaintiff claimed indebtedness of Smith & Co. The defences were that the defendant had no notice of Smith & Co. that plaintiff was not the holder of the note, and that the note was paid when due by McDougall & Co. It appeared that the note was indorsed by Smith & Co. to plaintiff, and by him discounted at the Metropolitan Bank. On the day the note fell due Smith & Co. failed, and he was informed by plaintiff, with his (plaintiff's) money, that a note had been delivered by the defendants with the proper money of Smith & Co. The evidence was confusing, and the Judge, having charged the jury, they, after a deliberation of half an hour, found a verdict for defendant, and the Judge granted an allowance of five per cent.

L. S. Thomas for plaintiff; Townsend & Galbraith for defendant.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

It is reported in London that Greece will give in her adhesion to the decision of the Peace Conference with certain reservations. It is feared these reservations will tend to protract the troubles with Turkey.

The Spanish Government has laid claim to all the libraries, archives and works of art held by the churches. It was while in the execution of an order to this effect that the Governor of Burgos was assassinated. His death has led to the arrest of the Dean and Chapter of the chapel in which the murder was committed. The people of Madrid are greatly incensed against the Papal Nuncio, and the Government declines to further recognize him in his diplomatic capacity.

At a public banquet in Paris last evening, Hon. Dix, the American Minister, declared that the cause of Greece was the cause of liberty, and that the American people sympathized with the Greeks.

The American ship Alaska, Capt. Swift, was burned at her dock in Havre yesterday. She had just arrived from New-Orleans with a cargo of cotton, and it was thought nothing would be saved.

No details of the accident to the steamship Persia have been received as yet, the agents at Havre manifesting a reluctance to give the particulars. It is simply known that the steamer encountered heavy weather, that an accident occurred and six persons were killed, three of them being second-cabin passengers.

The death of Mr. Robert Jones, a prominent Radical politician, is announced in London as having occurred on Tuesday.

CONGRESS.

Mr. Howe created considerable amusement in the Senate yesterday by presenting a memorial praying for the appointment of an able physiologist to examine candidates for appointment in the Internal Revenue service, to see whether they possess in a proper degree the essential qualifications, morality, &c. A bill introduced by Mr. Rousseau to enable the Cherokee, Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations to remove tobacco was referred to the Judiciary Committee. On motion of Mr. Sherman, the Senate took up the bill reported by him from the Finance Committee relative to the public debt and currency. Mr. Sherman then addressed the Senate at length in favor of the bill. His remarks will be found in full in our regular Congressional report. He was followed by Mr. Conkling, who replied in a humorous manner to the attack of Senator Morton, the recommendations of the President, and the reports of the Secretary of the Treasury. The Pacific Railroad Central Branch bill was then taken up, but without disposing of it the Senate adjourned.

The House resumed the consideration of Mr. Lynch's bill providing for the resumption of specie payments, and was addressed by Mr. Sherman. On motion of Mr. Schenck the House agreed to hold evening sessions for general debate. Debate on the bill amendatory to the Pension laws occupied the morning hour, after which the suffrage amendment to the Constitution was taken up. Mr. Bingham spoke in opposition to it. The House, as the committee of the Whole, took up the Legislative Appropriation bill. Without disposing of it the Committee rose, and the House adjourned.

At the evening session, in Committee of the Whole, Mr. Bingham made a speech on the Georgia question. Mr. Conger spoke on national politics and in favor of Mr. Bergmann's suffrage amendment. Mr. Kitchen addressed the Committee on the subject of the revenue, after which the House adjourned.

GENERAL.

By the arrival, at this port, of the steamship Morro Castle we are in receipt of interesting details of Cuban affairs. Our correspondent, whose letter is published in another column, gives full particulars of the downfall of Bayamo, the stronghold of the revolutionists. As Gloria accounts, published in the [illegible] produce to some has been made in exchange [illegible] and yet the country is pleased his doing so by forcibly his action and filling [illegible] the public offices just as he is coming in, serves rather his mind, of sharp practice to be quite worthy of a President of the United States.

The Republicans in the Senate have very effectually checkmated this little game. They have decided not to act upon any nominations except in cases of necessity, until Gen. Grant enters upon his term of office. This will give him,—which justly belongs to him,—the right of appointing to office such subordinates as he himself may select.

Now if the Senate will assist with the House in the repeal of the Tenure-of-Office bill, and thus free his hands entirely,—subject only to the Senate's constitutional right of confirmation or rejection,—it will give the new Administration a fair chance at the start; and it certainly has a right to claim that, at the hands of its political friends. The proposed amendments to the law will relieve it of some of its most objectionable features; but we see no good reason why it should not be repealed altogether, especially as the general subject seems likely to be handled over to a special joint committee of both Houses, for consideration during the recess. What public peril would be involved in giving Gen. Grant, meanwhile, the same liberty in making removals and appointments which every President before him has enjoyed, at the outset of his Administration?

Internal Improvements—The Air-line Railroad.

The bill authorizing the construction of an Air-line railroad from New-York to Washington, now before the Senate, reopens a question which in its original shape long ago passed out of the partisan arena. The constitutional battle on the subject of national appropriations for internal improvements was practically finished in the days of Henry Clay. The right of the Government to grant money for public works in the various States was then contested and in the end upheld. The Cumberland Road was the occasion of a controversy in which the respective pretensions of Federal and local power were argued with strict reference to the expressed or implied meaning of the Constitution. There were differences of opinion even among those who were favorable to the policy, considered in its bearing upon public interests, both Madison and Monroe affirming the necessity of amending the Constitution as a preliminary to the contemplated legislation. Mr. Clay's view triumphed. Congress declared itself possessed of power under the Constitution as it is, to make appropriations for the construction of national works extending into various States; and the principle thus laid down has from then until now been acted upon with comparatively little opposition from any quarter. The Democratic Party, as such, no longer opposes it. Now and then "strict constructionists" distinter the logic of the dead, only to be laughed at by their Western friends. For the necessities of the West have made it a unit on the subject; and appropriations for the improvement of harbors and rivers, for the construction of roads or canals, go through without suggesting other considerations than those which relate to the expediency or national character of the particular work, and the ability of the Treasury to sustain the drain. In the abstract, the policy of internal improvements is all but universally accepted as within the power vested in the General Government by the organic law.

If Congress, then, may order the construction of some public works in the States, may it not authorize the construction of other works—national in their character—at the expense and under the direction of chartered companies? This is the main point at issue between the supporters and opponents of the Air-line project. There is a certain degree of opposition arising out of the fact that the measure makes no provision for railroads running westward; the real contest being as to the right of the Government to create a railroad corporation to operate in States without obtaining the sanction of local law. But does not the established internal improvement policy cover the whole case? Is any greater power needed to facilitate the construction of a railroad from the Potomac to the Hudson than was exercised in the construction of the Cumberland Road. Both are covered by the constitutional authority to construct military and post roads and other works of a cognate character. The intervention of a corporation does not destroy the essential points of resemblance. Had the Congress which first favored the Cumberland Road found private individuals willing to undertake it on fair and well-defined terms, can there be a doubt that the requisite authority would have been conferred? And since Congress might, without question, provide the means for building, and actually build, a military highway or post road, to be operated by steam, from the national capital northward, southward or westward, may it not as properly create a corporation with power to construct and maintain precisely such a road?

These would be unfairness if the charter which it is proposed to grant were made the means of exempting the Corporation from necessary local taxation. Strictly speaking, perhaps, Mr. Conkling is correct when he suggests that a railroad which for the purposes of constitutional argument must be regarded as an "instrumentality of the Government," should be exempt from State taxation. But it is not wise in a matter of this nature to push the national claim beyond the line which defines the scope of national authority. The only danger to be guarded against is that of invidious and oppressive taxation imposed by the States who may deem their sovereignty infringed, and this is effectually provided for by the amendment of Mr. Wheeler, limiting the taxes upon the road, in manner and amount, to those imposed on other roads. The Company will enjoy no special advantage in this respect, nor will the States suffer any injury of which they can reasonably complain.

The outcry against the measure proceeds, in fact, from the monopolies whose unjust privileges an air-line railroad will curtail rather than from the people of the States concerned. It is not New-Jersey that objects, but the Camden and Amboy corporation. It is not the people of Maryland, who resist improved facilities for journeying to Washington on one hand or New-York on the other, but the managers of the line which has thus far fallen so shamefully behind the requirements of the traveling public. These sources of hostility ought not to be confounded with an honest opposition, founded upon a desire to restrain the powers the Government and protect the interests of the Republic. Of this opposition, in the general sentiment we see little. Nearly all that has been said may be traced either to the selfish interests, whose grasping propensities render interference necessary, or to those who, under the guise of protecting State rights, plead for capitalistic trusts and for influences fostered by monopoly.

The desirableness of enlarging the facilities of travel hence to Washington, none familiar with the present route, its inconveniences, delays and costliness, will venture to deny. New-Jersey and Maryland, left to themselves, have interposed obstacles which only extreme forbearance would have induced until now. It is necessary to remove these obstacles and break down the barriers reared by powerful monopolies, and the only apparent means of accomplishing this result seems to be those provided by the Senate bill. A new road will alone satisfy the public wants, and the authority to construct and run it must be derived from the General Government.

The condition to be insisted upon is, that the granting a charter to build an air-line road shall not be made a pretext for a raid upon the Treasury. To this danger we cannot be insensible. Experience has taught us how surely enterprises of all kinds into which Government authority enters tend in the direction of subsidies. Of these the country has had more than enough. It has donated land and granted money and issued bonds in behalf of railroads until all but the corrupt and speculative "rings" cry out against the system. The Treasury is not in a condition to endure the process. It has neither money to give nor credit to loan. The drain upon it already is fully equal to its strength. If, therefore, the air-line road were intended to be a subsidized road, the rejection of the bill promoting it would be a duty. Its just claims are wholly contingent upon the understanding that neither now nor hereafter shall a company organized under it be entitled to seek from the Federal Government financial help in any form.

Gen. Grant and Gen. Banks.

A week or ten days ago we printed a dispatch from a well-known correspondent of the Times, more familiar, perhaps, with the details of the military events of the rebellion than any other person in the country connected with the Press, stating that while Gen. Grant was besieging Vicksburg orders were issued from the War Department, directing Gen. Banks, then at Fort Hudson, to join him and take command of their united forces.

The publication excited general attention, and elicited a variety of comments. The Tribune, with its customary turnid dogmatism, gave the statement a flat contradiction, and pretended to have Secretary Stanton's authority for so doing;—but finding that this would scarcely answer, in face of the official record, it now takes the opposite course,—admits the truth of the statement, but says it is an "old and perfectly well-known story." Why, then, did the Tribune take such pains to pronounce it a baseless "fabrication," and pretend that Mr. Stanton had authorized them to say so?

As for the wiseacres who detect in the publication of what is now conceded to be the fact, evidence of hostility to Gen. Grant or of a desire to exclude Mr. Stanton from his Cabinet, their stolidity is too profound to be disturbed. If Cabinets were made up in the style they imagine, and if Gen. Grant were in the habit of basing his public action on the paltry personal resentments which they deem so powerful, their speculations might seem a trifle less absurd. So far as we are concerned, the fact that the Times has repeatedly and emphatically urged that Mr. Stanton would be the most prominently fitted for useful service to the country in Gen. Grant's Cabinet as Secretary of the Treasury, and has expressed very strongly the hope that he would be appointed to that post, affords sufficient refutation to the charge that the publication was prompted by any such motive.

Meantime we publish elsewhere some statements on the matter that may deserve attention. The existence of the correspondence in question between Gen. Banks and the War Department is asserted in the most positive manner. It is no longer pretended to be doubted in any quarter, that Gen. Banks was repeatedly and peremptorily ordered to join Grant with his command at Vicksburg,—or that upon compliance with this order he would necessarily have superseded him in command of the whole,—or that he refused to obey these orders.

Perhaps some of the parties concerned may feel inclined to elucidate a curious historical point, as well as vindicate their own action in the matter, by publishing the correspondence. We are quite sure that it has been seen and read by several persons,—some of whom are officers of the army and some are not.

The Paraguayan Position.

The last news from the La Plata contradicts, as usual, the news just preceding. The other day, we heard that the Dictator's army was "destroyed," and that Lopez, with barely 200 followers, was flying from the advancing allies. Now, however, we are assured that the Paraguayan army was not "totally destroyed," and that it has fight left in it yet.

The truth is, that we have so often been deceived regarding both Paraguayan and Brazilian reverses that it is difficult to put much faith in either. That Villeta itself has fallen into the hands of Da Gama is now probable; but, since on the day following the great battle, our Ambassador, Gen. McMahon, landed, and rode to the headquarters of Lopez, it is very clear that the whole story about the latter's being a "fugitive," and being accompanied by only "200 followers," is false.

Is not the present a good opportunity for our Government to tender its services to make peace between these belligerents? Twice before those friendly offers have been made, but rejected; can we not now, with better show of success, make a third proffer? Some gentlemen are inclined to believe that the true role of the United States is that of "protection." We do not know what promise, Divine or human, may be in reserve for the "protectors" of the human race, but we have Holy Writ to assure us that "blessed are the peacemakers."

To be peacemaker between Paraguay and Brazil is a function quite worthy of our country. The embittered contest over punctilios is such that a third party ought to intervene if possible. Our restored diplomatic relations with both Powers make it possible to attempt [illegible] and contain in its [illegible] the interests of the contending [illegible] which, if successful, would be attended by the war, would be obtained by successful arbitration for peace.

Gen. Webb in Brazil—His Controversy with Admiral Davis.

We publish in another part of this morning's Times a very interesting official correspondence between Gen. J. Watson Webb, our Minister in Brazil, and Admiral Davis in command of our squadron on that coast. It seems that, in his official publication under direction of the State Department, this correspondence has been very materially curtailed,—the Secretary not desiring himself authorized, under the call of the Senate, to publish so severe an arraignment of the action of the Navy Department as is contained in the letters of Gen. Webb. A correspondent, however, whose letter in simulation of the whole affair will be found elsewhere, sends us the correspondence in its original form, which we publish in connection with the letter in question.

It will be seen that Gen. Webb deals with the whole question, and with all the parties involved, with characteristic frankness, independence and impetuosity. Where he has instructions, he follows the line of conduct which they mark out, with vigor and fidelity,—especially if they seem to him adequate to the emergency;—where he has none, he acts all the same,—never hesitating to "take the responsibility" upon himself.

The whole difficulty, as the public pretty well understands, grew out of the refusal of the Commander-in-Chief of the Allied armies, and of the Brazilian forces, to permit an American war vessel first to pass the blockade and convey our Minister, Mr. Washburn, to his destination, the capital of Paraguay, and next to bring him away, after his position had become dangerous. Gen. Webb demanded a reversal of this decision, the censure by the Government of the Secretary who had made it, and such general redress as the insult to our flag seemed to require.

Failing to secure either of these demands, the General made the peremptory demand, either for permission for the Wasp to go through the blockading lines, or for his passports. Admiral Davis, who seems to have taken a different view both of the Minister's duty and of his own, remonstrated very strongly against the demands made by Gen. Webb, which, instead of inducing him to waive them, or modify them in any respect, only had the effect of drawing the Minister's attention to the Admiral's dereliction of duty, and to bring down upon himself the very sharp and protracted correspondence which we give elsewhere.

It is claimed, on Gen. Webb's behalf, that his prompt and vigorous interposition actually saved the lives of Mr. Washburn and his family,—while in doing this he had to contend, not only with the Brazilian Government and the chiefs of the Allied forces, but with the inactivity and incompetency of Admiral Davis of our own squadron. It will not be denied or doubted that he acted with a degree of promptness and vigor, and with a paramount regard for the honor of his country and the safety of his countrymen, quite characteristic of his whole career, both at home and abroad.

The correspondence will be found highly interesting and instructive.

The Sailors and the "Land-Sharks."

Large numbers of workingmen, representing several different trades and occupations, are at present engaged in strikes for higher wages. The majority of these have conducted themselves in a peaceful manner, as, we are glad to say, workingmen usually do in such movements for a legitimate purpose. But the sailors of this port, who are also on a strike for an advance of one hundred per cent in their pay, have shown a very belligerent disposition, and have engaged in demonstrations of a riotous character. Several ships were visited by a mob of them on Tuesday, and attacks were made on sailors who had shipped at the usual rates which have been paid for some months past; and the officers of other vessels were compelled to call on the Police for protection.

This strike is really not that of the sailors. They are not loud in expressions of dissatisfaction with the rate of pay, but the boarding-house keepers are. These land-sharks, who prey upon the sailor when he is on shore, have constituted themselves the leaders and spokesmen in the "sailors' strike," and they are responsible for the riotous proceedings which have taken place. It is these men who have endeavored to intimidate those more sensible sailors who ship at the best rates they can, and who declare that the shipping in our harbor shall not if their demands are not acceded to by the merchants. Their arguments justifying the strike are very curious. They say that seamen from Liverpool arrive here without money, and with few clothes, board and lodging cannot be afforded for less than seven dollars per week, and they are compelled to trust the sailors until they find ships, and that his board bill often amounts to more than his wages. Seamen from Liverpool arrive here nearly naked, because American seamen have not the benefit of the English Shipping act and are robbed there by boarding-house keepers and shipping-masters precisely as they are here. They are just as nearly naked when shipped from here to Liverpool. While the "land-sharks" are charging seven dollars per week board for the dirty lodgings and unhealthy food of their houses, excellent private boarding-houses in the region of East Broadway and the Bowery furnish food and lodging for five and six dollars per week. Is there any necessity that sailors should remain on shore for such a length of time that their boarding shall absorb the whole of their wages? There is a necessity, but the landlords make it. It is that they may rob the sailor of his wages; and the object of the strike is that the amount to be thus stolen from the sailor may be increased. Sailors in this port are not allowed to ship as long as they have money due them; and the robberies and abuses of the landlords will continue as long as Congress allows the present nefarious system of the shipping of American seamen to exist.

For these reasons we can have no sympathy with the sailors in the strike for the benefit of the "land-sharks." They will gain little sympathy from any one by continued riotous proceedings, and we advise the "land-sharks" to allow their misguided followers to return to their work. And we suggest to shipping merchants that this strike, incited as it is in the interest of a class hostile at once to seamen and ship-masters, and which, if successful, would be attended by the ruin of the American marine, [illegible] in order to enable Congress to consider the Amendment proposed at once. We did hope that something worthy of record and of imitation by the country would be accomplished in that Department. But if the parties elected have got the power, the migrating inefficiency of the past will bear a small comparison to the distressed arrangements that we may look for.

A comparison of Russia with Austria shows a remarkable change of the times. While Napoleon III. counts himself in Goodnight his Lorraine, Poitiers & Quatre and the rest, in order to repress popular liberty, the Emperor of Austria is fighting the Pope and the Clergy in behalf of the emancipation liberty. He has taken from them the monopoly, a Bull against the new marriage law, and the Emperor's Ambassador has put down a Catholic journal the friend of the People for applauding it. When Garibaldi determined America, and [illegible] to drive off and set up the Emperor, he [illegible] that that land to those Republicans who have certainly deserved something, and also [illegible] sympathies.

The purchasers of hair-dyes and fashionable hair have of late years been frequently warned against the dangers of their favorite cosmetics, which, containing, as they do, lead, combination, belladonna, and other alkaloids, or photographic poisons, are apt to produce paralysis and other fearful diseases, as well as the temporary renewed vigor and change of color for which they are advertised. But these cautions warnings in England are henceforth to be under the ban of the new British "Pharmacy Act," which forbids "retailing, dispensing or compounding poisons," under penalty of five pounds for each offence. Without label or warning of poison, these cosmetics are of the worst kind of poisonous drugs. We ought to have such a law, and some one whose business it is to hold the vendors responsible.

OBITUARY.

Ex-Gov. Francis W. Pickens.

A telegraphic dispatch announces the death, at Edgefield, S. C., on Monday, of Francis W. Pickens, formerly Governor of that State. Mr. Pickens was born in Tuscaloosa, St. Paul's Parish, S. C., April 7, 1807. His father, Andrew Pickens, a lawyer of wealth and ability, was Governor of the State in 1816-'18. The son was educated at the South Carolina College, Columbia, and was in 1828 admitted to the Bar, and commenced practice in Edgefield District. In 1832, during the height of the Nullification excitement, he was elected to the Legislature by the Nullifiers of his district, and soon distinguished himself as a debater. In 1834 he was elected to Congress, of which he remained a member during the next ten years. In 1836 he made an elaborate speech, denying the right of Congress to abolish slavery in the District of Columbia without the consent of Maryland and Virginia. In 1844 he declined a reelection to Congress, and was elected to the South Carolina Senate from Edgefield. The "Nullifier movement," a decisive action on the part of certain citizens of the State to secede from the Federal Union, was then in progress, and was advocated by Mr. Hammond, then Governor of the State, and other prominent men. Mr. Pickens voted with the majority against the measure. After remaining several years in private life, he was elected a delegate to the Nashville Southern Convention, which met in 1850-'51, to consider the proper course to be pursued by the South under the alleged aggressions of the North. In 1854 he presided over the South Carolina State Convention called to elect delegates to the next General Democratic Convention, and in 1856 he went to Cincinnati as a delegate to that Convention. In 1857 he was appointed by Mr. Buchanan Minister to Russia, and upon his return from that country in the latter part of 1858, before the State had declared its secession from the Union, he was elected Governor of South Carolina, which position he held at the breaking out of the late rebellion. He was a prominent Secessionist, and was intimately identified with the commencement of hostilities at Charleston. He figured quite prominently as a Confederate statesman for several years, but at the close of the war retired to private life.

Mr. Ernest Jones.

The cable announces the death, on Tuesday, of Mr. Ernest Jones, a prominent Radical politician of England. Mr. Jones was a descendant from an old Norman family, was educated in Germany, and on his return to England in 1841 he was called to the Bar. He commenced his professional career with success, but soon turned his attention to politics, joined the Chartist movement in 1848, and rapidly became its leader, a position which he retained until its extinction in 1856. During this period he issued The Labour, Notes of the People, and other periodicals, and established a newspaper called The People's Paper, which was the organ of the Chartists, and was continued for eight years. While connected with the Chartist movement he never accepted of any emolument, but spent large sums in its support, and voluntarily resigned a fortune of nearly $2,000 per annum, left to him on condition that he should abandon the Chartist cause. He contested Halifax in 1847, and Nottingham in 1852 and 1857. In 1848 he was tried for a seditious speech, and sentenced to two years' solitary confinement, and refused to petition for a commutation of the sentence. The severity of his treatment was made the subject of a debate in Parliament. While in prison he composed an epic poem, (published in 1851, after he had regained his liberty,) entitled "The Revolt of Hindostan." It was written with his blood, on the leaves of the prison prayer-books, as he had been denied pen, ink and paper, for the first eight or nineteen months of his imprisonment. "The Battle-Day" appeared in 1855, followed by other poems—"The Painter of Florence," and "The Emperor's Vigil," in 1856; "Beldagon Church," and "Corsica," in 1860. Upon the extinction of Chartism, Mr. Jones removed to Manchester, and became one of the Hours Circuit. He had just been chosen, by an informal ballot, to succeed Mr. Bright, member of Parliament from Manchester, in the event of that gentleman being convicted of the charges of bribery pending against him.

Theatre Francais.

As there will be no matinée performance of "L'Oeil Crevé" at the Theatre Francais on Saturday, but three more representations of that opera, this evening and Friday and Saturday, may be witnessed. Lecocq's "Fleur de Thé" will positively be produced on Monday next.

The Burns Festival—A Letter from John G. Whittier.

The following letter from Mr. John G. Whittier was read at the Burns Festival in Washington on Monday evening:

Amesbury, 1st Month, 18th Day, 1869.

Dear Friend: I thank the Club represented by thee for remembering me on the occasion of its annual festival. Though I have never been able to trace my ancestry to the Land o' Cakes, I have—and I know it is saying a great deal—a Scotchman's love for the poet whose home despots and brooders will yearly. The world has never known a truer singer. We may criticise his rude verses and compare his brief and simple lyrics with the works of men of larger minds and higher lyres; but after rendering to Wordsworth, Tennyson and Shakspeare the homage which the intellect owes to genius, we turn to Burns with a feeling with awe and reverence, with a feeling of personal interest and affection. We admire others; we love him. As the day of his birth comes round I take down his well-worn volume in grateful commemoration, and feel that I am communing with one whom living I could have loved as much for his true manhood and native nobility of soul as for those wonderful songs of his which shall sing themselves forever.

They know little of Burns who regard him as an unthinking versifier—"the idle singer of an idle lay." Pharisees in the Church and opponents in the State knew better than this. They felt those immortal pictures which did not die with the author, but lived on to work out the divine commission of Providence. In the shape of anti-church editions, as they hit the entitled Queen of Rechdale into the British Cabinet, I seem to hear the voice of the Ayrshire poet:

"For a' that and a' that,
It's coming yet for a' that,
That man to man the world o'er
Shall brithers be for a' that."

With hearty sympathy and kind greetings for the Burns Club of Washington, I am, very truly, thy friend, JOHN G. WHITTIER.

Pilot Commandments.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Your Albany correspondent is mistaken in the statement he makes that the Pilot Commissioners had not made any report to the Legislature on the subjects of their receipts and expenditures.

On the 1st of April last the Commissioners sent to the Senate, in response to a call made upon them by Senator Cameron of that body, a full statement of all their receipts and expenditures for the last three years, being all that was asked for.

As to the resolution of Mr. Jacques, I may say "The voice is Jacob's voice but the hands are the hands of Esau." GEO. W. BLUNT.

MARINE DISASTERS.

The Accident to the Steamship Pereire—Three Passengers Killed.

LONDON, Wednesday, Jan. 27.

None of the first-class passengers on the steamship Pereire were seriously injured by reason of the recent accident. Three of the crew were killed, and the following-named second-class passengers: Mr. GUIZEBAR, a Catholic priest; M. TOURQUIN, a Frenchman, and Mr. TAUSSMANN, a German. The Pereire encountered a fearful tempest a few days out from Brest, in the course of which heavy seas broke over her, carrying away entirely her forward deck cabin, and inflicting other damage. It is also understood that she encountered much ice. Notice to his creditors is officially has to put back to Havre under sail; but there seems to be a singular reticence about the affair, and much difficulty in procuring details, or, indeed, we are still without reliable particulars.

A dispatch was sent from this city this morning to the Havre agent of the company, to which the Pereire belongs, asking for full particulars of the disaster, for transmission to the United States. At 4 o'clock this afternoon no answer had arrived, giving no facts, but referring us to an account in a Havre newspaper, which contains many lines until to-morrow. Thus far no details of the accident, from a reliable source, have been received. This air of mystery gives rise to many speculations of the wildest character, but it is certain that no fatalities among the passengers were actually injured. No accounts of the disaster have gone from London to the United States other than the rumors stereotyped sent to the Associated Press.

LONDON, Wednesday, Jan. 27—10 P. M.

All the additional information which, up to this hour, has been received of the disaster to the Steamship Pereire is an intimation that none of the American passengers on board were killed or injured.

Burning of an American Ship in Havre.

HAVRE, Wednesday, Jan. 27—Noon.

The American ship Alaska, Capt. BEALE, which had just arrived here from New-Orleans with a cargo of Cuban cotton, took fire this morning in this harbor, and, owing to the combustible nature of the material, is burning furiously. The ship probably will be totally destroyed. The Alaska was built in Kennebunk in 1860, and was 1,318 tons burden. She was owned by TRAFTON & LINCOLN, of Boston, and sailed last from New-Orleans on the 10th of December.

GREECE.

The Same Conference Protocol—The Sympathies of America.

LONDON, Wednesday, Jan. 27.

The Greek Government will probably give in its adhesion to the conclusions of the Conference of Paris, but it is feared that the signature will be accompanied by reservations which can only tend to protract the difficulty with Turkey.

PARIS, Wednesday, Jan. 27.

Gen. DIX, the Minister of the United States, at a public banquet this evening, made a speech, in which he declared that the cause of the Greeks was identical with the cause of liberty throughout the world, and he assured the people of Greece that they had the sympathy of America.

TURKEY.

Senator Rye to be Minister to Turkey.

LONDON, Wednesday, Jan. 27.

The Levant Times publishes a rumor that Senator RYE, of Nevada, will succeed Mr. MORRIS as the American Minister at Constantinople in March next.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Death of Mr. Ernest Jones—The Fenian Convicts.

LONDON, Wednesday, Jan. 27.

Mr. ERNEST JONES, the well-known Radical politician, died yesterday. He had just been informally chosen by ballot over Mr. MILNER GIBSON, a Liberal candidate, to succeed Mr. BRIGHT, one of the present members of Parliament from Manchester, in case the latter should be unseated on the charge of bribery.

The directors of the bank of OVEREND, GURNEY & Co. (limited) have been held for trial in bonds of £20,000 each.

DUBLIN, Wednesday, Jan. 27.

A meeting of influential citizens was held here last night, at which resolutions were adopted urging the Government to pardon the Fenian convicts.

SPAIN.

The Government Claims all the Church Archives and Libraries—Indignation Against the Pope.

MADRID, Wednesday, Jan. 27.

The Government has laid claim to all libraries, archives and works of art possessed by the churches, as the property of the State. It was while carrying out the orders of the Government that the Governor of Burgos was assassinated. This event causes intense excitement. Violent demonstrations have been made by the people in this city against the Papal Nuncio, and the Government has withdrawn its official recognition of his diplomatic powers.

The Dean and Chapter of the Cathedral of Burgos have been arrested and imprisoned.

NEW-ZEALAND.

Defeat by the Maori Rebels at Poverty Bay.

LONDON, Wednesday, Jan. 27.

Official dispatches have been received by the War Office from New-Zealand. They announce that a battle had taken place between the British troops and the Maori rebels at Poverty Bay, and that the latter were defeated, with great loss in killed, wounded and prisoners. The victory had restored tranquility in that quarter of the colony.

SOUTH AMERICA.

The Paraguayan Army Still in Force at Angostura.

PARIS, Wednesday, Jan. 27.

Still later advices have been received from Rio Janeiro. The war news was unimportant. The Paraguayan army, though badly defeated at Villeta, still occupied the stronghold of Angostura. The damage by the burning of the Custom-house at Rio Grande is largely over-estimated.

The Delaware Legislature.

WILMINGTON, Wednesday, Jan. 27.

The State Legislature has adopted a joint resolution, declaring the authority of the State over the banking of coast telegraph cables on its shores, alleging that the Atlantic coast of Delaware is peculiarly accessible for the landing of the French Cable, and appointing T. D. CONNER a Commissioner to confer with the Company touching that enterprise. Notice was given in the House yesterday of a bill to amend the charter of the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad Company. Prior to the action both Houses held a secret and informal session on the subject. HENRY F. BONNEY, a prominent citizen of this State, died at Lewes last week, aged 80 years. He served in the State Legislature and in the Constitutional Convention in 1852. As a member of the Convention he protested, in a letter, against colored citizens to the right of suffrage.

The New-Jersey Legislature—The Election of Senator Stockton.

TRENTON, N. J., Wednesday, Jan. 27.

To-day at 12 o'clock both Houses met in joint assembly. The Journals of both Houses were read, showing that Hon. F. SCHENCK had been elected by separate vote by each House yesterday. A resolution was adopted that the Joint Assembly do now ballot for a United States Senator from New-Jersey for six years from the 4th of March next. The President so declared, and the Joint Assembly vote. Appropriate followed the announcement, and, at the close, amount of the vote had been made, Hon. JOHN R. THOMPSON, of Trenton, announced RICH. VAN HORN, of Camden, 29 votes, and 1 blank. Thereupon the President declared the Hon. RICHARD VAN HORN duly elected Senator from New-Jersey for the term of six years from the 4th of March next.

The Virginia State Republican Central Committee.

RICHMOND, Va., Wednesday, Jan. 27.

The Republican State Central Committee met to-night, and appointed a committee of thirteen of the most prominent Republicans in the State, with GOV. WELLS as Chairman, to go to Washington and represent the Republican Party. The Central Committee was enlarged and reorganized, and G. K. GUESS chosen President. The reorganization is understood to indicate a more liberal policy on the part of the party in the State. The Executive Committee made a report favoring a Provisional Government in Virginia if an election on the present Constitution cannot be had at an early day, this Government to be elected by the people, upon the order of the Commanding-General, and to remain in force till an election on the Constitution is had.

The Connecticut Democratic Convention.

HARTFORD, Conn., Wednesday, Jan. 27.

The Democratic State Convention met to-day in Allyn Hall and was well attended. T. M. WALKER, of New-London, presided temporarily and made a strong speech in favor of paying the bonds in gold. Hon. J. G. LOCKWOOD, of Bridgeport, was elected permanent Chairman. Resolutions were adopted ignoring the Tammany platform. Resolutions also were adopted as tribute to the memory of F. H. SEYMOUR. A speech was made by J. F. HANDCOCK in support of the latter resolutions. The old ticket was renominated, as follows: For Governor, JAMES E. ENGLISH; Lieutenant-Governor, RICHARD E. RIGGS; Secretary of State, LEVERETT S. FLINN; Treasurer, EDWARD S. MORELEY; Comptroller, JESSE OLNEY.

Fire in Chicago—Railroad Freight Charges.

CHICAGO, Ill., Wednesday, Jan. 27.

A fire occurred last night at No. 51 South State-street, occupied by CHARLES DEGRESSIER, commission merchants, and on the third and fourth floors by H. FERRAZZ and A. DEW & CO. The total loss is nearly $20,000.

In the Legislature, yesterday, a bill was introduced to compel the railroads in this State to charge

CUBA.

Hostilities Between the Cuban and Spanish Factions—The Troops Outwitting and Killing Officers.

HAVANA, Monday, Jan. 25
VIA NEW-YORK, Wednesday, Jan. 27.

A reign of terror has commenced in this city, owing to the blinding out of open hostility between the Cuban and Spanish factions, which heretofore has been almost unknown in Havana. There is now little doubt that the Cuban party, in the early part of the Spanish, were very, Saturday night, the volunteers and regular troops were ordered to put a stop to the disorders. The heads of numerous persons are being suggested by the Public. The Government will not hold itself responsible, it is hoped, without efforts to protect American citizens.

HAVANA, Wednesday, Jan. 27.

The Diario reports, on the authority of official information, that Puerto, Santa, Cuba, and other towns are full of native insurgents and their families, and that three thousand of them have presented themselves to the authorities and received amnesty. At Bayamo, several chiefs gave themselves up and were pardoned.

Other accounts from the interior, received through Spanish channels, represent that the insurgents are surrendering at many points to receive the benefits of Gen. DULCE'S proclamations. But in the vicinity of Santiago the rebels continue very active; they carry off the slaves and harass the troops; and it is reported that they have destroyed by fire half a dozen large plantations near the town.

LABOR REFORM.

Convention of New-England Labor Reform Associations.

BOSTON, Wednesday, Jan. 27.

The New-England Labor Reform Convention met in this city to-day. The meetings were held in Mechanics Hall, but were very largely attended by delegates from all parts of New-England. The object of the Convention is to form a Labor Reform League to carry forward the work of reducing the hours of labor and increasing women's wages. Mr. E. H. HARWOOD, of Worcester, was elected President, with several gentlemen and ladies, prominent in the labor movement, for Vice-Presidents. A long series of resolutions relative to the duties of capitalists and laborers were submitted and adopted en masse. Mr. HARWOOD made a lengthy speech, declaring that money should be free, and spoke very harshly of the capitalists of State and Wall streets. Mr. MORRIS, of New-York, made one of the oratorical speeches of the forenoon session, endeavoring to show that true liberty can come to the laboring men only through the adoption of a system of free trade. Resolutions were introduced expressing the hope that this Convention would commemorate its power upon the reduction of the hours of labor, but the speeches which followed urged female suffrage, as it would give laborers the votes to control capital.

At the afternoon session several speeches were made by persons, males and females.

At the evening session Mr. WENDELL PHILLIPS was introduced, and was received with tremendous applause. He came out, he said, to theorize, but for practical work. He took exceptions to the financial policy advocated by some, and said these things should be ignored. It did not matter whether Gen. BUTLER'S system of finance was correct or not, the laboring men could accomplish his ends centuries before the financial question would be settled. The reason why the laboring men had not their rights was because they had not asked for it. The laboring men would not vote for their own candidates. We have only to teach the working men to stand by themselves. They were seven to one against the capitalists, and the reason why they had not their rights was because they had not taken what belonged to them. Some men have all their capital in their brains. They are as much capitalists as moneyed men. Men who manufacture thoughts are laboring men, like they who are in the shop. There is no injustice in the existence of capital. The only question is, what are the relations of capital to labor; what actually belongs to the laborer? He means that a right to live who does not render an equivalent, and money should not allow any man to labor so that he has not time to care for his soul.

After some further remarks by Mr. PHILLIPS, the Convention adjourned.

Alleged Conspiracy to Defraud A Life Insurance Company.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Wednesday, Jan. 27.

A man named ALBERT HYATT alias Samuel B. Allen was arrested this morning on the charge of attempting to defraud the Union Mutual Insurance Company, of Maine. Other parties were also arrested on the same charge. The following is an outline of the case: In July last, HYATT alias Allen obtained from the agents of the Insurance Company, HONGNOS & BAILEY, in this city, a policy of insurance on $5,000 on his life, in the name of Samuel B. Allen, which, in the month of August following, he assigned to J. S. GARLOCK, a lawyer of this city, for the consideration of $40. On Thanksgiving Day, Allen was reported to have been drowned in Irondequoit Bay, while hunting. Two men, named GEORGE HAMMAND and JOHN HOLLIDAY, alleged that they saw him fall from the boat. Chief of Police BRESNAN subsequently ascertained that HYATT alias Allen was not drowned, and at once made preparations to arrest the parties engaged in the alleged attempt to defraud the Insurance Company. The names of the parties under arrest are: ALBERT HYATT alias Allen, J. S. GARLOCK, GEO. B. BRADY, GEO. DOWD, JOHN HOLLIDAY, HONGNOS & BAILEY and GEO. HAMMAND. Allen confesses that he did not fall out of the boat. An examination of the case will be had this afternoon.

THE WEST INDIES.

ARRIVAL OF THE STEAMSHIP MORRO CASTLE.

The steamship Morro Castle, from Havana on Monday, has arrived at this port bringing our correspondent at Havana and full and interesting details of recent occurrences in the Island of Cuba, including the fall of Bayamo, and the beginning of the circumstances that led to the revolt, of which we have had a summary by telegraph. Further AVAILABLE are thanks on the usual occasions.

AFFAIRS IN CUBA.

The Fall of Bayamo—The Valmaseda Fight—Incendiarism of Quesada—Sharp Practice—The Riot in the Tacon Theatre.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HAVANA, Saturday, Jan. 22, 1869.

What was looked on as the stronghold of the Cuban revolutionists has at length fallen into the hands of the Spanish forces. An official account, published in the Gazette states that on the 19th inst., it was occupied by the forces of VALMASEDA, the rebels having burnt it to the ground before evacuating it, which they evidently did at their leisure. The small town of Berth contiguous to it, was also burnt, and everything that might prove useful to the Spaniards completely destroyed. The act, of course, has called forth various expressions of opinion among the Havanese, the Spanish party keeping on it all the vituperative excursion of which it is capable, while the Cuban party hold it up as tradition as one of the most heroic acts of modern times. Leaving them to enjoy their mutual revilings, which promises, by the way, to become interminable, I will pursue my narration of the facts that preceded its downfall.

The reception of advices from Puerto Principe some short time ago unfavorable to VALMASEDA induced the Government here to benefit themselves in sending on reinforcements, to either relieve him in his critical situation, or enable him once more to assume the offensive, as circumstances might warrant. His army swelled by the number of battalions and detachments of troops, he at once decided to strike once more for his objective point, Bayamo. After succeeding in driving away the revolutionary force garrisoning Guisimero, and which consisted of upward of 3,000 men, he marched, at once in the direction of the insurgent capital, skirmishing continually with the rebel guerrilla parties who thronged his whole line of march, and annoyed him greatly, without, however, impeding his advance. The first encounter of any importance that took place between the rebel forces and those of VALMASEDA was at the Paso del Salado, where the latter claims to have defeated the insurgents, with a loss of "one hundred and twenty killed and an infinite number of wounded;" his own loss, for reasons that prudence probably will justify, is not given, although it must have been considerable, from the fact that whenever the Spaniards inflict on the rebels a loss heavier than that suffered by themselves they are very prompt in giving details. The news of this defeat having been received in Bayamo, it was determined by the rebel leaders to burn it to the ground, and thus render it a completely barren victory for the valiant defenders of the "flag of Castile." This was accordingly done and on the appearance of VALMASEDA before the city, he found nothing but the charred remains of what was once Bayamo. The citizens, revolutionists, all had left and gone in the direction of the "Sierra." From what is called the moral effect of the fall of the rebel city great things are expected by the Spaniards. The Cubans attach very little importance to its loss, and say that they have led VALMASEDA a foolish dance through the country only to grasp a barren victory.

Bayamo really does not possess the importance in either a military or political sense that some would give it credit for. It is situated on the Bayamo River, one of the tributaries of the Cauto, twelve leagues inland from the port of Manzanillo, seven from Jiguani, twenty-two from Holguin, and eighteen from Tunas. It contained a population, before its destruction, of 2,403 whites, 1,106 free negroes, and 991 slaves, or a total of 5,512. Neither as a point of military or strategic importance can its loss be considered as a "coup de grace" by either the revolutionists themselves or any unprejudiced observer. The great wonder is that the Spaniards had not possessed themselves of it much sooner, than they have. Some have dignified it with the name of the Gibraltar of Cuba, but in what its a rough comparison can hardly be made apparent.

INCIDENTS OF THE EVACUATION.

It has been stated that a deputation of citizens of Bayamo, shortly before its evacuation by CESPEDES and his forces, waited on the Cuban President, and requested him to alter his determination of burning the city, stating that the act would not only cause them a great loss, but that it was also repugnant to their feelings, and its execution of very questionable wisdom. CESPEDES replied that he would not rescind the order; that there was no time to hesitate now, and that he and his family would be the greatest losers by the fulfillment of the order which he as superior chief had decreed; besides, he said, Bayamo was a very old, dilapidated city, and it would be a great deal better to rebuild it. These were the reasons given by the revolutionary chief, who stated it as being his determination to make a Moscow in miniature of every town in Cuba sooner than submit himself again to the Spanish yoke. Whether the weight of his arguments used by CESPEDES convinced the deputation of patriots or not, is not known. Certain it is, however, that the torches were soon after applied and the City of Bayamo fast became enveloped in the smoke that curled, and the flames that leaped from the burning edifices. The conflagration lasted three days, and according to accounts presented a very grand spectacle. I have not the least doubt as to its grandeur myself, when it is taken into consideration that there were in the city over 1,500 buildings of all descriptions. Among the larger edifices destroyed were two Convents, San Francisco and St. Domingo. The former was built in 1828, and was, before its destruction, 237 years old. The city itself was founded in 1513, twenty-two years after the discovery of the New World by COLUMBUS, and an Indian village occupied the site where DIEGO VELASQUEZ DE CUELLAR founded the City of San Salvador de Bayamo. A glance at these figures will show Bayamo to be among the oldest settlements of the New World, its present age being some 355 years.

INTENTIONS OF CESPEDES & CO.

Parties in Havana who appear to be pretty well informed with regard to the movements in prospect by CESPEDES and his army, state with a great deal of confidence that a combined movement will soon be made to the westward, having for the object the galvanizing of the insurrection throughout the sugar districts, freeing the negroes on the various sugar plantations, arming them, and, pinning them in what they call the liberating army, compel them to achieve their liberty by "active service" in the cause of Cuban liberty, equality and fraternity. CESPEDES, when he evacuated Bayamo, had under his immediate command some 4,000 men, and retreated in the direction of Manzanillo. They are represented as being very poorly provided with arms and ammunition, but, by all accounts, inclined to take advantage of the very generous offer made by Gen. DULCE. An attempt was recently made by them to set fire to Manzanillo; but the attack was repulsed, and the revolutionists compelled to decidedly in the direction of the Maniguar, and shelter themselves from the fire of the Spanish war vessels lying in the port.

SHARP PRACTICE.

It is not very often that the head centres of the Cuban revolution in Havana steal a march upon the argus-eyed officials and spies of the Dulcian Government, who are so numerous that if they were mobilized, armed and equipped they would form a very imposing brigade, and doubtless do good execution on the field if they displayed half the energy in exterminating the hosts of Cubanos that they do in pounding the birds of prey upon opportunes who affords the slightest grounds for suspicion of given forth the faintest odor of Sam Republicanism or Cuban Independence. The Masons of some possessed by these worthy bipeds is truly amazing, and their muscular organs are susceptible of the faintest revolutionary murmurings. They are distributed quite liberally throughout the city, having representatives in every theatre and place of public resort emulating out lungs and ready, at a moment's notice, and with the most rapid locomotion of which their pedal organs are capable, to fly to the front thereon in the Plaza de Armas with their information. If the result cannot understand to participate, into the real spirit of the enterprise in which so many of the leading men in the city are known to be engaged, the Government, in order to prevent a repetition of the outbreak of last Saturday, has issued a proclamation, which, in substance, is as follows: "Shots were fired in the Cerro District, it was reported, by some of the Cuban party, on the Spanish "Cuerpo." Shots were also exchanged between the Spanish volunteers and the Cubans, the guard at the Governor's palace was doubled, parcels of cavalry and infantry paraded the streets the whole night, and the greatest excitement prevailed. The mêlée around the theatre was of a character to cause the opening little credit on either party—a thorough street row.

THE ROCHESTER MURDER.

The Inquest Resumed—Evidence of Michael Logan and Wm. Reynolds.

The inquest on the Rogers murder was resumed by Coroner PETER PRESTON, yesterday, in the Chambers of the Board of Assistant Aldermen. The room was filled to overflowing by a very motley crowd, composed principally of Rochester and Sam Wardens. Two or three of the relatives of the murdered man were also present. The prisoners, the two LOGANS, TAGGART, and the colored boy, were also, of course, in the room, the murderer smoking his cigarette, even puffing in about 11 o'clock. The last and sons of the murderer were handed to the Coroner

BROOKLYN REAL ESTATE.

TO CAPITALISTS.

THE UNITED STATES WAREHOUSE CO.,
HAVING CONCLUDED TO DISPOSE OF THEIR REAL PROPERTY, offer FOR SALE their splendid

WATER-FRONT ESTATE,

[illegible] to the HAMILTON-AV. FERRY, BROOKLYN, comprising over twenty-six City Lots of Land, extending from Dupont to Sedgwick-st., including a fine railroad and pier, with the right to extend the same to the Commissioners's line, subject to some two additional lots, together with an area equal to twenty lots of water, with ten inch bulkheads of six thousand linear feet.

The improvements consist of a splendid fire-proof grain warehouse, extending 300 feet square, built substantially of brick, stone and iron, with vertical wrought-iron tubular tens, in the form of a cross through the middle, and a vast connecting gallery in said. Its strength and durability have been tested for years to its full capacity, which is equal to about half a million bushels. The grain is handled and weighed by machinery, at less than one-quarter cost of manual labor. The remainder of the property is covered with good sheds, and is used as a provision warehouse.

The machinery, elevators, will sent other machinery, are all of the latest description, in perfect order.

It was leased some few years since for a single branch, by whom it is now occupied; to 1869, all taxes and assessments paid by lessee; and at the end of term the property and machinery to be surrendered in equal good order. Apply to

CONGRESS.

tion of taxes. Its attempt this year confidently by a surprise upon our people, by at once paralyzing their industry by arresting them in the midst of lawful business and applying a new standard of value to their property, without any reduction of their debts or giving them an opportunity to compound with their creditors or distribute their loss, would be an act of folly without example in evil in modern times. It is sometimes said that we did this in the name of the Legal-tender act—that we inflicted the same loss on the creditor that we now propose for the debtor. This is not true. The effect of the Legal-tender act was undoubtedly to depreciate our notes, but the process was very slow and gradual. For more than a year it scarcely operated as a depreciation, and during all the time the capital paid off by depreciated notes was invested in bonds, manufacturing stocks, railroads and manufacturing furnaces, created by the war, which flooded as much in gold as the capital produced by the war. Capital lost nothing by the war even when paid in greenbacks, for the demands for capital during the war made ample outlets for the investment of its greenbacks. It is estimated that the interest-bearing capital of this country now is 10 upon the gold basis, more than double the capital in 1860. And if it be true that appreciation now will only work the same injury to the debtor that depreciation did to the creditor, we would be justified in peace in inflicting the same injuries justified by war, and the creditor who is usually the holder of property is better able to bear the loss of a portion of the money due him than the debtor is to bear an addition to his burden. Our power over the creditor is unlimited—we may have taxes compel him to any amount, but we have no power to add a cent to the money or property he owes. The question then remains, what amount of appreciation of the value of greenbacks will operate the least injuriously to all the sound business interests of our commonwealth? And upon this point your Committee, after the most careful consideration, came to the conclusion that the only and the best plan was to allow them to be funded, at the pleasure of the holders, into interest-bearing bonds of the United States. In designating the bond we have selected that new familiar to the people—the twenty bond. The market value of the bond will probably always be that of the legal tender, and then the process of appreciation of the notes will be slow, and will only advance with the increasing credited the country. It is a bond bearing as low a rate of interest as we are likely to negotiate, and yet of such intrinsic value that we may hope to use it as par with gold in a short period. It enables us to pay taxes to a laborer who has no money but greenbacks, and still leaves the money value of his labor to sell for time indefinite the interest. It enable us expressly by a permanent appropriation from an ample fund sufficient without further act of Congress to pay of every dollar of the debt in twenty-five years. Again, Sir, this provision of the bill is right when tested by the usual mode of business. We farmers and merchants pay the note in coin, or we hand to give the holder our note with interest. Such was the beginning was the policy of the Government. When the notes were first issued under the act of July 26, 1862, they were convertible at will into bonds. We add a quasi-tender, which we propose to put upon the market, and we expect bonds may accidentally referred to. The proposition of the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. SUMNER,) though not formally referred to the Committee, yet having the attention of his great mind, was carefully considered, and so much of it as was approved was embodied in the bill reported, but it was rejected, and the bill as reported, but it was rejected, and the bill as reported, but it was rejected, and the bill as
